When you start teaching English online, it's an opportunity to develop your professional skills. Here are four top tips to help you interact with your students and create a positive learning environment:

Make use of video tutorials

Take time to really understand your platform by watching video tutorials. They will help you feel confident if there are technical issues or your students have questions.

Experiment with new features, when you are ready and comfortable

Take the time to think carefully about which online platform will allow you to share your learning resources or activities.

Rehearse your online lesson with another teacher

Take time to rehearse. Make sure you rehearse your lesson or observe another teacher. It will help you see how it feels as a teacher and a learner.

Set practice task for independent study and save time in class for communicative tasks

Try to set up time to make sure that your learners have plenty of opportunities for communicative language practice.
